Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 12 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly cloudy with showery rain. Brighter towards Lochaber.

Today:
Rather cloudy and cool with outbreaks of showery rain through much of the day. Some bright or sunny spells will develop across western areas from Skye down to Lochaber. Also warmer here with a few heavy showers. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Mainly cloudy with mist patches and a little drizzle overnight, especially over north and east Highlands. A few clear interludes towards the West Coast. Light northeasterly winds. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Thursday:
Mainly dry but staying rather cloudy over north and east Highlands. Bright spells and a few showers towards Skye and Lochaber. Light northeasterly winds. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A lot of dry weather but rather cloudy and cool with a few showers. More persistent rain may affect the north Highlands for a time over the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.